CALADAN GALLERY is excited to announce a compelling juried exhibition “Digital Universe”. This exhibition is a celebration of the potential technology has opened up for the realm of the arts. The artists represented in this exhibition have boldly utilized this genre, providing the first steps in the vast artistic destiny made inevitable by the onset of technological advances. They have opened the portal for generations of artists to come, creating an evolution that can only be speculation in the present! Rather than supplant more traditional art mediums, it is evident from this exhibition that the digital media is a compliment to them. Ron Bartels adds a moving testimony in his experimental “lenticular prints”, introduced as an addendum to the juried exhibition. These subtle and beautiful opalesque works appear as a moving hologram, shimmering and stimulating the imagination. Also on view for the month are solos exhibitions by two artists experimenting with contrasting digital photography. “Patrick Brangan: Light and World” is a series of photographs taken in Ireland and India, atmospheric and magical. He very subtly employs digital photography to highlight and bring out the very essence of his subject matter. In contrast, Dorothy Oja in her “Synthesized Worlds”, brings her objects to life by exploring their potential realities through the digital medium. Exhibition dates: July 1 – August 4, 2005. ## MORE ABOUT THE GALLERY AND ARTISTS

“Digital Universe” is an exhibition that is full of surprises! The call for artists generated some unusual entries. The artists are willing to walk beyond the linear expectations of artistic expression into the unknown, utilizing what is generally an unlimited genre. Solo Award Winner Paul DiLascia illustrates this perfectly in his digital collages. His work is not limited to the sum of its medium. The work is acutely prophetic in subject, profoundly beautiful, and originates in timelessness. From the realms of space and nature, to apocalypse, to the worlds beyond our knowledge, Paul is seeking answers to a world on the edge. Caladan

Gallery will also be presenting a two-person exhibition featuring the mandala works of David Bookbinder and Clare Goodwin. David Bookbinder builds his images from nature and found objects, resulting in resonating interpretations of the world around us. Clare Goodwin, in contrast, is originating geometric form to create stunning compositions with her MandalaMaker software technology. The two approaches are complimentary and make for a stunning gift for the eye and soul.

Caladan Gallery is pleased to present a new member artist, Kathy Braceland. Kathy is a master of the overstated. Her work, uncluttered by convention, is fresh and alive, based in the elements of joy. She un-selfconsciously approaches her own private art world with an almost child-like love and innocence. This could be a reflection of her work with dyslexic children, who are very drawn to her “skeleton drawings” and seek to emulate their teacher! Kathy's “skeleton drawings” has a not-so-subtle irony behind it, reflecting the human condition just a little too accurately! Upcoming exhibitions at CALADAN GALLERY include: “Conquered Mind, Awakened Spirit: The Visionary Paths”, “Mingling of the Senses”, a All Hallow's Eve celebration, and an exhibition devoted to the Mandala.
