

Superman: The Animated Series - 3 Large Shots of Lenticular Doomsday Packaging

DVD Ships on September 18th

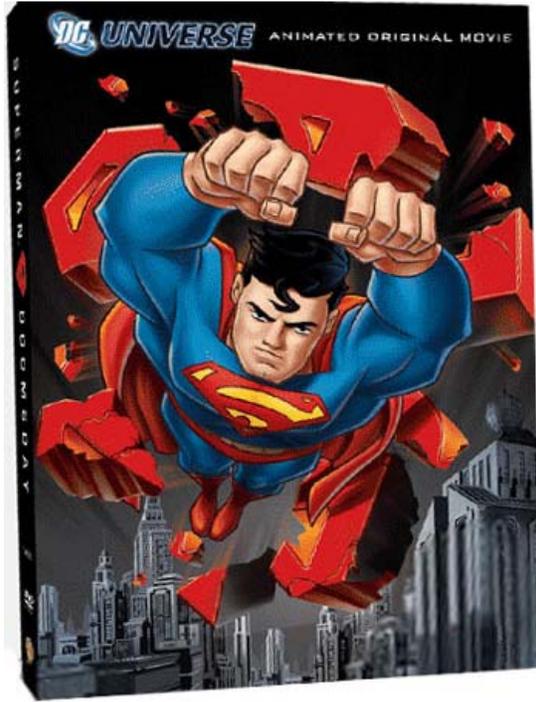

Posted by David Lambert

6/10/2007

At the beginning of this month, we brought you Warner's press release for Superman: Doomsday, an original direct-to-video movie that isn't exactly a spin-off of Superman: The Animated Series (as much of the production crew and voice cast are different), but which will surely be of intense interest to those fans. Bruce Timm's presence as Producer certain is noteworthy! This story is, of course, based on events in the renowned DC Comics editions that marked Superman's death, and eventual rebirth.

What the press release really didn't talk about, though, was the collectible lenticular packaging that Warner is putting together for this Sept. 18th release! It features a Superman "shield" logo, dripping a bit of blood, that rotates and then has our hero burst right through it! Below we have three large shots of that cover, representing the lenticular cover as held at three slightly different angles. This gives you more to see than the current fan-uploaded art at Amazon's pre-order listing, which looks to be the same art first posted at the SupermanHomepage.com website in late May.

original article :
<http://www.tvshowsondvd.com/news/Superman-Animated-Series/7457>